It's 1866 and a large wagon of mail-order brides are heading to Kansas.

Sallie Murphy vowed to NEVER marry, but after losing all of her worldly possessions in a fire that burned down the town, she's left with little choice...

She doesn't trust anyone and still wears the horrible scar on her neck from the last person she let into her heart.

The last thing she'll do is let someone run her life again.

So... though her body is moving out west, her heart still plans to save up money and leave her new husband the first chance she gets.

That's until she's wooed by the man who gives her his last name.

Harvey Chapman is running for mayor, but also from a past that haunts him.

His mission:

To help better his community, but... when he marries Sallie, she too becomes his mission.

A mission to gain her TRUST.

He can see that she holds a secret and knows that at the end of the day, winning the race for her heart is the only race that matters.

But darkness looms over the race for mayor and danger is around the corner. It will take both Sallie and Harvey working together to save their town.

Will Harvey win her heart?

Will Sallie ever let go of her past?

"...The road will be rough, but the end is worth the test as they learn to love and forgive each other just as God has..."
