Fac-simile?s du manuscrits des e?crits mineurs Nicolaus Copernicus, Nicolas Copernic

Ce deuxième volume de l'édition française des Oeuvres complètes de Nicolas Copernic rassemble en fac-similé les documents concernant les écrits mineurs, alors que le premier volume, paru en 1973, offrait la reproduction du manuscrit du De revolutionibus. La présente édition se distingue de ses homologues en langue anglaise, polonaise, latine et russe, publiées par l'Académie polonaise des sciences, en ce que les traductions des textes de Copernic reproduits ici en fac-similé (vol. I, Paris - Varsovie - Cracovie, 1973, vol. II, Paris - Varsovie - Cracovie, 1991) seront édités en France dans une série indépendante. L'idée de reproduire tous les écrits mineurs de Copernic sous forme de fac-similé n'était pas prévue dans notre projet initial. Elle nous a paru ultérieurement justifiée pour la raison essentielle qu'une collection unique de photographies de manuscrits dispersés dans toute l'Europe a été rassemblée au terme de longues années par le Centre d'études coperniciennes de l'Institut d'histoire des sciences, de l'éducation et de la technologie de l'Académie polonaise des sciences. Nous avons pensé qu'il était de notre devoir de publier ces documents dans la mesure où une telle collection de textes, témoignage de plus de quarante ans d'activités créatrices de Copernic, méritait d'être mise à la disposition de tous les chercheurs. Enfin, cette publication devrait éliminer les risques d'erreur et de contresens occasionnés par un manque d'accès aux sources. Dans le présent volume les documents autographes de Copernic sont donnés en premier lieu, suivis des copies de ses écrits monétaires et astronomiques, viennent enfin deux petits livres imprimés du vivant de Copernic.
