Jasper's Magic Blanket Debbie A. Atwood

Jasper thinks he has a magic blanket because he kicks off his covers every night before he falls asleep, but in the morning he is snugly tucked in. He convinces his classmates that they also have magic blankets and enlists their help to unCOVER how their blankets work. This story is delightfully illustrated by national award winning artist, Danny Gordon. His brightly illustrated scenes draw readers and listeners into the story. Cleverly disguised within each illustration is a scripture reference from the Holy Bible. This added dimension gives families the opportunity to explore together the underlying theme of the story, which is "LOVE."
