In 1998 St. Paul's published "The Spirit of St. Paul's: A Collection of Memoirs Commemorating the School's Sesquicentennial," edited by Kevin J. Cronin, then of the upper school history faculty. These 60-plus short vignettes of St. Paul's through the ages (well, from 1932 to 1997) illuminate the values and spirit over six decades and two campuses, at Mt. Washington and Brooklandville, that remain part of the St. Paul's foundation. I will periodically share stories from "The Spirit," including one by Randall Coleman '65 about his father, who, as an enterprising student in the class of 1939, sold Al Capone a ticket to a St. Paul's dance.
